Why The Hoban Hotel?

The hotel is named for James Hoban a pioneering architect who was born in Kilkenny in 1755 and went on to design and build America's White House. Having completed his professional education in Dublin, he emigrated to America in 1785. In 1792 and with the support of George Washington, he won a competition to design the White House which used many references to Dublin's Leinster House. A member of the Washington City Council for many years, as well as operating a tavern and building a number of hotels, he was a major figure in the history of America's capital city. A Hoban Memorial is located ten minutes' drive from the hotel on the regional road R691 off the main route to Callan/ Clonmel road (N76). A Hoban heritage marker was installed in Green Street, Callan in 2017.
